WATER DEVELOPMENT FOR FARM USE

Local Agricultural Improvement Association has been notified by the superintendent of Water Development that financial assistance in the construction of dug-outs for the conservation of water has been increased from $75 to $150; in effect, provision is made for doubling capacity.

While some farmers have taken advantage of the government offer, and others have waited upon their own effort, it is beyond question that a far greater number still rely upon seasonal rainfall to raise grain produce and for other domestic purposes.

No greater relief is to be given on the local level than a plentiful supply of water. Water was the first really important resource of the original settlers; to sink a well became work of the first moment.

Knowledge accumulates, and experience is the great educator of humanity in the fight for existence. Nine-and-twenty years of knowledge and experience of our district should have brought home to residents the importance of that rainfall, in due season, is not to be relied upon.

Some farmers have natural notions where dams are possible for storage, but even on the most level quarter-section it is probable that a site could be located for the construction of a dug-out.

Why take advantage of our district under this fall and act into a position to be able to store the spring runoff and use heavy rains which come? By this means the home grower can take care of and, in addition, a reserve supply of water for the cattle when trouble happens in the pump-house.

It would appear, however, that this question of a minimum price (generally deemed to be 57 cents), should be a matter transcending political bounds, in fact, be settled on a basis of national economy. Anyone who gives some thought to the matter will all agree that the present Western wheat crop means more revenue to all the larger Canadian interests and, in turn, will result in a higher price.

Although on steady rains have fallen recently, a series of showers have been scattered over the district. Free days in succession (from Thursday to Monday), the village has experienced thunderstorms with varying degrees of rainfall, the heaviest on Sunday, about 4 inches.

Slight hail is reported from the last storm which, although brief, was accompanied by a strong wind. Crops are coming along far better than in many past years, but the lack of steady rain will cut down yields on lighter soils.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. STRANGE

(From "The Wheat Book", South Grain Co. Ltd.)

This is a good year for one of the oldest and most useful of white people in the world. I mean our good friends the Swedes.

1938 is the 300th anniversary of the first settlement of the Swedish people in the United States and Canada. During the last century and a half, they have successfully colonized large areas in the United States and Canada.

Today, the great Swedish colonies, in 1883 A.D., just 180 years ago, wrote in the soil of the United States and Canada, and have so enhanced the welfare of the people.

It is interesting to note, too, that 1938 is also the 100th anniversary of the death of the great Swedish botanist, Linnaeus, who originated the scientific method for the classification of plants which has helped much to advance the progress of science.

LOOK at the RECORD
OF CASE THRESHERS AND COMBINES

"My Case thresher has threshed every year since 1904, and if it continues as it has in the past, it will do me for the rest of my farming days," writes W. L. Buchanan of Saskatchewan. "I have found it very light running, easy to operate, and it always did a good clean job."

Ever since 1842 Case threshers have been famous for simplicity, easy operation, clean work, light running, long life and low upkeep. Case combines have the same sturdy quality, many of the same features, and similar records of superiority. No wonder there are many Case threshers and combines in use throughout the dominion. Don't take chances of delay or wasted grain with an old, inefficient or unreliable combine. Go on your Case dealer now and see how much money and power you can save with a Case combine. Case machines. Whether you prefer a thresher or a combine, Case gives you a machine, combining all the best of both, and conquering all the toughest single-gear grain, steel-gear screw, air-lift clean-up, simple adjustment for all crops and conditions.
